The general objective of the Carolina Crossroads Phase 3 Project is to reconstruct the system interchange of I-26 and I-20 and complete the reconstruction of the I-26/I-126 system interchange which was started in Phase 1. The reconstruction of the system interchanges will require extensive widening to parts of I-26 and I-20 and modifications to the adjacent interchanges which were not addressed in previous phases, the I-26 Interchange with St. Andrews Road and the I-20 Interchange with Bush River Road.  - Create combined exit from I-20 EB for traffic going to Bush River Road, I-26/I-126, and Broad River Road resulting in a C-D road along I-20 EB between Bush River Road and Broad River Road interchanges
 - Tie the I-20 WB exit ramp partially constructed in Phase 2 to new I-26 on ramps
 - Braid I-20 WB exit to Bush River Road with I-20 on-ramp from I-26
 - Relocate intersection of I-20 WB ramps with Bush River Road to increase spacing between ramp intersection and the intersection with Berryhill Road.
- Widening of approximately 4 miles of I-26 from just west of St. Andrews Road to west of the US 378 interchange to include at least one additional through lane in each direction
 - Replace bridge over Saluda River
 - Replace bridge over CSX RR
 - Replace Bush River Road bridge over I-26
- Widening of approximately 3 miles of I-20 between east of US 378 and Broad River Road interchanges to accommodate additional through lanes as necessary
 - Replace bridge over Saluda River
 - Replace bridge over CSX RR
 - Noise barrier walls in certain station ranges along I-20 EB and WB
- Relocation of portions of the following roads to facilitate interstate widening and interchange improvements. Additional work on these roads beyond the Phase 3 limits will be conducted in Phase 4.
 - Jamil Road
 - Fernandina Road
- Relocation of the following roads to facilitate interstate widening and interchange improvements:
 - Burning Tree Road
 - Browning Road
 - Berryhill Road
